

4. Capital Market

- a. No shares will be traded.
- b. The market may only issue shares representing capital increases to be applied to new real investments.
- c. No investments may be made in shares, except those acquired by the companies to make organizational restructurings.
- d. Shares are not transferable to third parties or heirs.
- e. Once the shareholder has died, shares pass to the State, which administers them through an autarkic and autonomous body controlled by the Congress.
- f. There will be organizations administering personal or corporate savings to turn them into construction, initially, dwelling construction.

5. Role of the State

- a. The State must be in charge of providing, on its own or through third parties under the charge of the state, the basic communications, education, energy, justice, health, transportation, and any other type of activities allowing the integral development of the human being.
- b. Under no circumstances may the State be separated from the sovereign willingness of the people.
- c. Under no circumstances may the representatives be separated from the sovereign willingness of the people.
- c. Under no circumstances may the representatives restrict the rights of the people.
- d. The most significant role of the State is to ensure that ALL the INDIVIDUALS which make it up have the same possibilities of developing as persons, in decent conditions.
- e. It is in charge of ADMINISTERING THE PUBLIC CAPITAL.

6. Application of the “Redistribution Social Tax”

This entity will be in charge of providing retirement payments once the requirements for their grant have been complied with.

Also, it will provide employment insurance so that any economically active person may collect compensation and/or a pension, as the case may be.

Heirs, whose predecessors used to hold shares, once the declaration of heirs has been passed, will become the beneficiaries of an average retirement payment each while they are alive or until the depletion of the capital representing the shares initially inherited that passed to the State.